Each thing of the tree is important for its growth and survival. The tree trunk is the main support for the tree. It also transports water and nutrients from the roots to the leaves. The leaves use these to make food for the tree.

Use a small branch to make a simple model of a tree trunk. Use a piece of wood for the trunk and a piece of string for the branches. This will help you understand how a tree trunk works.

Put a piece of wood in a pot of water. The wood will absorb water and become heavier. This is how a tree trunk absorbs water from the ground.

Apply 1% Benlate solution to the trunk of a tree. This will help to protect the tree from diseases. Benlate is a fungicide that kills fungi, which are the cause of many tree diseases.
