

"Understanding a Methodology for Identification, Demarcation & Documentation of Heritage Zones"

Date: 11th July 2016 – 15th July 2016
Last date for registration: 30th June 2016
Venue: Sathyabama University, Chennai

Aim:

The broad aim of the training program is to discuss the various methods for identifying and protection of heritage buildings/zones.

Content:

Identifying, demarcating and protecting the living heritage building and its precincts will help our country to create a niche in the podium of world heritage. Documentation of the same will highlight heritage value of the past, act as an evidence of honor of our glorious past and pay off official recognition in the international forum.

The faculty training program will help the participants to understand the importance of conservation of historic sites with heritage and cultural importance. This is an initiative which helps in understanding, analysis and conservation of historic sites considering the tangible and intangible factors. The discussions and onsite study will illustrate some of the key methods in identifying, demarcation and documentation of heritage zones.

Learning Outcomes:

The training Programme comprising of two parts with a series of expert lectures and hands on on-site practical experience and would help the participants in:

- Creating awareness and induce thinking about our past, present and future condition of our historic sites
- Understanding the importance of conservation, heritage and its values
- Identifying tangible and intangible cultural values and recording the same with onsite data and sketches
- Classifying and marking issues and challenges at site level and documenting the same
- Gaining hands on experience and knowledge about how to identify, list and document heritage site and its precincts

Speakers:

The training program will be offered by experts in various fields of conservation
