FACULTY INDUCTION PROGRAMME

VALUE-BASED MANAGEMENT

AN INTEGRATED APPROACH TO VALUE CREATION

VENUE: SCHOOL OF BUILDING AND ENVIRONMENT
DEPARTMENT OF ARCHITECTURE
Date-11th-15th September 2017

SIGNIFICANCE & OBJECTIVES OF THE PROGRAMME

Value-based management can be defined as an integrated management control system that measures, encourages and supports the creation of net worth. Over the last 20 years, the field of value-based management (VBM) has changed significantly. VBM began with a breakthrough performance metric and has matured into an entire management framework that focuses organizations around value creation. There is a complication with value-based management, however. Doing it right is not easy. Recent reports have indicated that almost half of the companies that have adopted a VBM metric have had mediocre success. The difference between success and failure with VBM depends on how well a firm integrates VBM into the culture of the organization. This programme aims to compare not only the metrics used by different consultants, but also to analyse their value-based management constructs as a whole. This analysis shall be based on the fundamental components of a holistic VBM-program, as defined by several researches on value-based management. The programme is intended for Practising Architects, Project Managers, Researchers and Teachers in understanding the varied interests of all stakeholder groups and the impact of value-based management on collaboration.

Protein expression, disulfide pairing and protein folding in three-finger toxins

Three-finger toxins are a major group of non-enzymatic toxins. Toxins in this group exhibit wide variety of pharmacological effects indicating the versatility of this protein fold. Ms. Tahreen will aim to express few of these novel three finger toxins and will also identify the structural elements that are responsible for disulfide pairing and protein folding in these three-finger toxins. Identifying such structural elements will help in designing proteins with canonical and non-canonical structural folds.

Payments to postdoctoral fellows are normally considered taxable income. Although payments treated as fellowships for income tax purposes do not require withholding tax at source, it may be advisable to have regular tax deductions made. The income is taxable and regular deductions will avoid owing a large amount at the time of filing an income tax return. For more information, contact Canada Revenue Agency www.cra-arc.gc.ca. Upon your arrival at Lakehead, please let our Human Resources Department know if you would like income tax deducted at source.

This postdoctoral fellow appointment may be terminated at any time by the University for cause (for example, a material failure to meet the specified service standards), in which case the postdoctoral fellow is not entitled to any further payments beyond those earned for services provided up to the date of the termination of the appointment. For any reason, early termination of the appointment may also occur if either party provides written notice according to the Employment Standards Act.
