05th Oct 2020: Current Trends in Teaching English as Second Language

The event was conducted on 05 October 2020, in seminar hall venue -2 The Program started by 01.30 p.m with the welcome address by Dr.Amudha Monica. She gave a warm welcome to the Chief Patrons, Patrons and Management Representatives and introduced the chief Guest Dr. U.S. Akshara Govind, Assistant Professor, Department of English, SRM Institute of Science and Technology, Chennai. There was a total number of 50 participants.

The Chief Guest gave a vibrant speech on The Current Trends in English Language Teaching as Second Language.

She started her speech by explaining how English Language as evolved and how it has emerged as a forerunner in the 21st century across the globe in schools, colleges and at work place. The points discussed are as follows.

Task-Based Language Teaching: A response to traditional teacher-led, grammar-oriented approaches of language instruction that encourages memorization, TBLT is a student-centered method that relies on interactive, meaningful activities. Students use language to tackle real-world situations, learn how to ask questions, and negotiate meaning in how they interact with groups. Tactile and Embodied Learning: Primarily intended to meet the needs of kinesthetic learners, tactile and embodied learning incorporates movement and touch into the English teaching process to enhance memory and engagement. Real-life objects, crafts, games, and physical storytelling help students become involved in the process of learning. Mobile Learning and Gaming: Apps and online games are more popular and accessible than ever. They offer new and exciting methods of teaching English. Blended Learning: Mobile or web-based learning is usually not effective on its own. Many English teachers prefer blended learning, which utilizes both traditional classroom support and autonomous web-based tools. While students receive
